

§19

Permission according to §18 can be given for up to one year at a time. During this time it shall be tried how the operation turns out. Permission shall immediately be withdrawn if it can be assumed that the prerequisites according to §18 no longer exists. A decision about withdrawal of permission takes effect immediately unless other decisions are made.

This actual proposed law is on page 187. The proposed law can be downloaded in Swedish from the Swedish Government homepage: <http://www.regeringen.se/sb/d/11355/a/128290>

In the preparatory text possible acceptable "extraordinary reasons" are geographical difficulties, special medical care or a short term stay for foreign families in Sweden.

Rohus, the Swedish Association for Home Education is now working hard to change the proposal, and get a schoollaw that accept homeeducation as a natural alternative to ordinary schooling. We've started a petition where anyone can support our cause, http://rohus.nu/?English_information:Petition and we also raise money to be better able to do a good work. Donating is possible at our website <http://www.rohus.nu/>

If you want to contact Rohus, please send an email to info@rohus.nu or use the form on our website.

www.rohus.nu

§19

Permission according to §18 can be given for up to one year at a time. During this time it shall be tried how the operation turns out. Permission shall immediately be withdrawn if it can be assumed that the prerequisites according to §18 no longer exists. A decision about withdrawal of permission takes effect immediately unless other decisions are made.

This actual proposed law is on page 187. The proposed law can be downloaded in Swedish from the Swedish Government homepage: <http://www.regeringen.se/sb/d/11355/a/128290>

In the preparatory text possible acceptable "extraordinary reasons" are geographical difficulties, special medical care or a short term stay for foreign families in Sweden.

Rohus, the Swedish Association for Home Education is now working hard to change the proposal, and get a schoollaw that accept homeeducation as a natural alternative to ordinary schooling. We've started a petition where anyone can support our cause, http://rohus.nu/?English_information:Petition and we also raise money to be better able to do a good work. Donating is possible at our website <http://www.rohus.nu/>

If you want to contact Rohus, please send an email to info@rohus.nu or use the form on our website.

www.rohus.nu

The proposal of new schollaw in Sweden

In the proposed new Swedish school law homeschooling will not be permitted for those referring to philosophical or religious reasons in accordance with the European Convention on Human Rights. The reason given in the preparatory texts to the proposed law (indicating how the law should be interpreted) is (my translation):

"...that the education in school should be comprehensive and objective and thereby designed so that all pupils can participate, regardless of what religious or philosophical reasons the pupil or his or her care-takers may have."

Thus, the suggested law argues:

"...there is no need for the law to offer the possibility of homeschooling because of religious or philosophical reasons in the family. All together this means that this suggested change cannot be said to contradict Swedish international obligations [Human rights conventions]."

Translations from the preparatory text of the proposed law on page 584.

The actual proposed law reads like this:

The proposed Swedish school law, chapter 22 (my translation):

§18

A school-aged child can be allowed to fulfill the school obligation in other ways than what is stated in this law. Permission shall be given if...

- 1) the operation appears to be a fully satisfactory alternative to the education otherwise available to the child according to what is prescribed in this law.
- 2) insight into the operation [by the authorities] is provided, and
- 3) there are extraordinary reasons

The proposal of new schollaw in Sweden

In the proposed new Swedish school law homeschooling will not be permitted for those referring to philosophical or religious reasons in accordance with the European Convention on Human Rights. The reason given in the preparatory texts to the proposed law (indicating how the law should be interpreted) is (my translation):

"...that the education in school should be comprehensive and objective and thereby designed so that all pupils can participate, regardless of what religious or philosophical reasons the pupil or his or her care-takers may have."

Thus, the suggested law argues:

"...there is no need for the law to offer the possibility of homeschooling because of religious or philosophical reasons in the family. All together this means that this suggested change cannot be said to contradict Swedish international obligations [Human rights conventions]."

Translations from the preparatory text of the proposed law on page 584.

The actual proposed law reads like this:

The proposed Swedish school law, chapter 22 (my translation):

§18

A school-aged child can be allowed to fulfill the school obligation in other ways than what is stated in this law. Permission shall be given if...

- 1) the operation appears to be a fully satisfactory alternative to the education otherwise available to the child according to what is prescribed in this law.
- 2) insight into the operation [by the authorities] is provided, and
- 3) there are extraordinary reasons